

WASHINGTON

Startling Rumors Relative to the Cuban Question.

General Grant Himself Takes the Reins.

Immediate Repatriation Demanded of the Spanish Authorities.

A Naval Demonstration Threatened.

The Executive Session of the Senate.

HOWARD AND CROWE CONFIRMED.

THE QUESTION OF ADJOURNMENT.

Serious Aspect of the Cuban Question—Peremptory Demands Against Spain for Outrages Upon American Citizens.

The Cuban question has been rendered more interesting and important to-day from the fact that the city is full of rumors crediting the Administration here with decidedly hostile intentions toward the Spaniards on account of the recent outrages to the American flag and the seizures of American citizens.

President Grant, it is confidently declared, has directed a peremptory demand to be made upon the Spanish authorities in Cuba for the immediate release of the two passengers taken from the brig Lizzie Majors.

It is said that Secretary Fish has already telegraphed instructions to our representative in Cuba to make this demand without delay, and a refusal to comply promptly will be followed by hostile demonstrations from our naval squadron cruising in the vicinity.

The official despatches that have been received here make out a plain case for the interference of our government, and this step is said to have been taken after mature deliberation.

These warlike rumors give much delight to the Cuban emissaries here and to the sympathizers with the Cuban cause. As to what will be the result of the demand on the part of our government, opinion is pretty evenly divided here, some holding that it will be acceded to without hesitation, and others declaring that Spain will not suffer General Dulce to lay an inch—that she will go to war.

The Senate spent nearly four hours in executive session to-day, and accomplished very little, only six or seven nominations being confirmed. A good deal of time was consumed in discussing the question of adjournment. That was brought up in open session, but as it involved, to some extent, the executive business before the Senate it was thought best to discuss it with closed doors. After a long discussion the question was dropped without any action. This was a defeat for those who favor an early adjournment, under the lead of Edmunds, and a victory for those who want to stay here, under the lead of Sumner.

No time has yet been fixed upon for adjournment, but it is thought the Senate will be able to leave here about Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

Love at the White House—Getting Rid of the Congressional "Pressure."

The President to-day held an open levee for all comers—Senators, members and office seekers. His room was constantly filled from the time the doors were thrown open until they were closed. Everybody took their turn, and, as the crowd kept closely up around Grant, of course every person heard every other person's business.

Several Senators and Members were disgusted with this sort of interviewing, and rather than have their business with the President made public they left the room without speaking to the President. It is hinted that perhaps Grant has taken this method of getting rid of the "pressure" of Congressmen, of which so much has been said.

The Chinese Mission.

Mr. Howard, nominated for Minister to China, was confirmed to-day, after a debate of nearly an hour. There does not seem to have been any objection to Howard personally, but the friends of J. Ross Browne opposed Howard on the ground that he proved himself a capable Minister, and should not be removed. Howard's friends brought up Browne's political record, which was not quite as strong on the question of republicanism as that of Howard.

President Grant's touchstone of fitness for a place, so far as politics are concerned, is that no man who has accepted office under Andrew Johnson for the last two years is a good republican. This was among the things he told Senator Ross in the celebrated interview that individual lately had with him. Browne, unfortunately, is in the ostracized list, and this was about the strongest argument used against him.

The New Governor of New Mexico.

C. C. Crowe, nominated for Governor of New Mexico was confirmed to-day. It appears that he entered the Confederate service under protest, as thousands of other men did, to save themselves from the merciless and sweeping conscription of Jeff. Davis. He took an active part in the late Presidential campaign, speaking for Grant and the republican ticket. He was supported by nearly all the Southern Senators, and though the year and days were called the vote on this confirmation stood 36-14.

Unpleasant Discharge of Treasury Clerks.

The political goulite, which has been so active at work for some days past in the different executive departments, to-day commenced operations in the bureau of the Second Auditor of the Treasury. Sixty-five of the employees upon visiting their desks this morning, entirely unconscious of any contemplated changes, were surprised at finding to their address a yellow envelope marked official business. The contents of the envelope were well known, as such presentations had become quite common.

The Senate in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

Excitement in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

Unpleasant Discharge of Treasury Clerks.

The political goulite, which has been so active at work for some days past in the different executive departments, to-day commenced operations in the bureau of the Second Auditor of the Treasury. Sixty-five of the employees upon visiting their desks this morning, entirely unconscious of any contemplated changes, were surprised at finding to their address a yellow envelope marked official business. The contents of the envelope were well known, as such presentations had become quite common.

The Senate in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

Excitement in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

Unpleasant Discharge of Treasury Clerks.

The political goulite, which has been so active at work for some days past in the different executive departments, to-day commenced operations in the bureau of the Second Auditor of the Treasury. Sixty-five of the employees upon visiting their desks this morning, entirely unconscious of any contemplated changes, were surprised at finding to their address a yellow envelope marked official business. The contents of the envelope were well known, as such presentations had become quite common.

The Senate in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

Excitement in the Second Auditor's Bureau.

BROOKLYN CITY.

THE COURTS.

Suit Against a Sabbath School Missionary Association.

Before Judge Thompson.

Henry S. Fenwick vs. Charles S. Blackwell.—Defendant is the treasurer of the Sabbath School Missionary Association connected with the North Reformed Dutch church, Brooklyn, Rev. M. Engard, pastor. In the month of April, 1888, he made an arrangement with plaintiff, who is a lithographer, to furnish the association with 500 copies of Sabbath school certificates, of which he was to furnish the design. The price agreed upon was $150. The certificates were to have on them the likeness of the present pastor and that of his immediate predecessor. The design was made and the copies furnished the association, who refused to accept them. The action was brought to recover payment of the $150. The defendant set up that the plaintiff, before printing the certificates, was to furnish the association with a proof, and then was to proceed with his work only on condition of the proof being accepted. It was also claimed that the proof was not furnished, and would not have been accepted if it had been, as the likeness of the pastor, the defendant contended, looked like the photo of a noted pugilist. Verdict for the plaintiff for full amount.

KINGS COUNTY SUGGESTS A COURT.

Before Wm. D. Veeder, Surrogate.

The wills of the following named persons were proved in the Surrogate's Court during the past week:—Jonathan Saul, Garrett Cassidy, Peter Schwartz, Sarah E. Hayes and Norman Campbell, all of Brooklyn.

Letters of administration were granted in the estates of Anna S. Williamson, Elizabeth Jane Potter, Thomas Atkinson, Andrew Armstrong, Bridget Lee, Catherine Jacobs and Eliza Sands, all of Brooklyn.

COURT CALENDARS FOR MARCH.

SUPREME COURT—Circuit.—Nos. 42, 48, 67, 72, 73, 74, 106, 114, 115, 117, 118, 119, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126.

CITY COURT.—Nos. 69, 75, 77, 84, 85, 74, 12, 4, 10, 1, 2, 28, 30, 34, 37, 40, 45, 52, 53.

BURNING CATASTROPHE.—An infant daughter of Mr. John Stocum, 109 Powers street, E. D., sustained serious if not fatal injuries, by clothes taking fire, yesterday afternoon.

HOUSE ROBBERY.—Yesterday afternoon, meek thieves entered the residence of Mr. J. Friel, 20 Montrose avenue, E. D., and stole $75 in cash and some trinkets.

A BROKEN SWINDLER.—A respectable retired man called yesterday morning upon J. S. Mackey, broker, No. 30 Green street, and offered for $300, which had all the appearance, at first sight, of being genuine. The amount was promptly handed over to the bearer, to whom it was made payable. Subsequently the forgery was discovered and the police authorities were notified of the swindle. The police are in possession of such information as will undoubtedly lead to the arrest of the swindler.

ABSOLUTE WITH A CLUB AND SLINGSHOT.—John Carroll, residing at the corner of Water and Jay streets, was seriously, if not fatally, beaten about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, as alleged, by Thomas Slavik, a bartender in the drinking saloon of Mr. Goldstein, about corner of Jay and Water streets, who carried a club and slingshot. He was arrested by officer Cowan, of the Forty-second precinct, and locked up to await examination.

AN INFORMED TOWN STAFF.—The screams which were heard proceeding from No. 103 Deane street yesterday afternoon attracted the attention of patrolman Sutton, of the Forty-third precinct, who was on duty in the vicinity. Upon entering the house the cause of the alarm was found to be a desperate quarrel which was then progressing between John Devlin and his wife Ellen. The latter had received two ugly stabs in the right arm, and was cut twice on the head with the leg of a stove. While the doctor was being called, the man kept well up to his work, punnelling and scratching her savage husband. The officer called for assistance, and the police arrived. The man was accompanied by a woman, whose injuries were a painful though not serious character, to the Long Island Hospital. Devlin, whose face bears marks of the nails of his better half, was taken to the latter street station house, where he remains to answer the charge of felonious assault. He is fifty years of age, of Irish birth, and of a violent temper.

NEWS IN BRIEF.—There were 302 persons arrested by the police of Brooklyn during the past week.

The French Catholics of this city have purchased ground in the Eighteenth ward and are about to erect a new church thereon.

There is something in the dead animal contract, it would appear, from the fact that a cat is permitted to remain in the streets for days before it is taken away.

Clinton street was crowded, as is usual on Saturday evenings, with intrepid riders on the bicycle, who move up and down grade with the greatest ease and freedom, regardless of the numerous vehicles on that route.

The $50,000 Mercantile library fund, started by the donation of $200 from Mr. S. B. Childtender, for the purchase of books, is now realized. The contents of the original donation were that the remaining $49,800 should be subscribed by the 15th of April. A vote has been taken and the amount of the fund is $50,000. The fund will be used for the purchase of books at full rates or eight hours at a reduction of twenty per cent. The eight hour system was unanimously decided.

DEATH IN A CELL.

The Coroner's Investigation.

Coroner Whitehall has held the second investigation touching the death of James Haggerty, a man of considerable wealth, but who, it would seem, unfortunately fell into bad company, and, as previously stated in this paper, was taken to the Forty-third precinct station house and died in the cell in which he was placed on the night of the 12th inst. The examination has not been concluded, and it is, therefore, impossible to tell at this stage of the proceedings what conclusions the jury will arrive at regarding the cause of the death. The case thus far taken, the death of Mr. Haggerty seems very unfortunate to say the least, and the case is therefore attracting more than ordinary interest. It has been stated that the deceased spent a portion of the afternoon, previous to his death, in a saloon kept by Dennis Egan in Smith street, and that towards evening he was either snored out or taken out by a friend. Thus far no testimony has been taken in regard to this; but from what has been elicited recently by the coroner's inquest, it is believed that he was picked him up and tugged along with him, dropping him occasionally upon the sidewalk from exhaustion. One of the witnesses testified that the officer took his temper and tapped Haggerty on the head two or three times, as he tried to wake him. He entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his liberty. He came to his feet, and, with some five or six feet distant, and said he noticed a slight scratch on his face. There were no other marks about him which attracted attention. He was then asked, by asking him two or three times, to learn that his name was James Haggerty. He was then entered upon the matter as James Haggerty, aged fifty, intoxicated, doorman Hart then entered upon the scene and, together with the officers, conveyed him to a cell in the rear, where they laid him upon his back upon the floor. Subsequently doorman Hart discovered him pulling vigorously at his collar, as if anxious to gain his